

Dear Ones,

We asked you to pray. YOU PRAYED! GOD PROVIDED! Thank you so much. We praise God for His financial provision. Our work account is now in the black. In this case, black is a very beautiful color! We have had a year of blessings from the Lord, and I pray that you have too.

In family news, the entire family will head to Scottsdale to spend Christmas with Rick and Jennifer and their three kids. Rick is working for an online marketing company doing computer things, which are a mystery to me.

Jennifer is working on a book on deceptions in the church and keeping the house in good shape. Joshua is still living at home. He has chronic fatigue syndrome. When he feels decent, he is the family baker. He used to watch a lot of Food Network shows and has decided he wants to be like Chef Emeril Lagasse. Jeremiah is a senior in high school and has been accepted at the Master's University. He is working a lot of hours at Subway and trusting the Lord for provision to attend school.

Ruth graduates from the Master's University in December with a degree in biblical counseling. She plans to start graduate school in Tennessee in January to pursue her master's degree in social work. She will also be working a June wedding into her busy schedule, as she is now engaged to a charming young man from South Carolina. Trustin Wadford proposed Thanksgiving evening in her parents' backyard.

Dan and Diana are enjoying being grandparents to Owen. Dan is working in the tech field (what he does is beyond my understanding!). Diana is teaching at Federal Way Academy. David is living at home and doing contract computer work (also a mystery to me). Drew and Elise live near Portland. He works for a company that engineers medical equipment. Elise works about three nights a month as an on-call nurse at a local hospital. They are expecting baby number two in April.

Ralph is working part-time at the church, replacing locks and other projects, and completing the final editing of his hermeneutics book. I am holding down the fort at home and teaching a Bible study on Tuesday mornings. We have lost two of our ladies to cancer this year. One slipped into heaven the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. We miss them but rejoice they are face to face with the Savior they love!

We want to thank you for your prayers and giving! A blessed Christmas to all, and we pray the Lord's best for you in the New Year!

Joyfully His,

Betty for the Camps
